Focus: Culture

The Moroccan artist Mohamed Chabaa participated in the Chicago Sister Cities O'Hare airport mural project.

Focus: Culture

The Moroccan Ambassador to the U.S., the Honorable Benaissa, and a delegation of tourism and trade professionals, visited Chicago. Their itinerary included a panel discussion on "New Perspectives for the Middle East & Mediterranean Travel & Tourism," a lunch with Mayor & Mrs. Daley and the Casablanca Committee, and an evening reception that featured a concert of Andalusian and Gnawan music. The musical groups also performed at the Daley Plaza noon concert. As a result of this visit, the "Moroccan-U.S. Council of Trade and Investment" committed to opening an office in Chicago.

Focus: Business

The Casablanca Committee received a partial grant from NASDA to fund a 1993 "business to business" trade delegation of Chicago-area businesses to Morocco. This was a joint effort between the City of Chicago Department of Planning & Economic Development and the State of Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs. This delegation also included representatives from the Chicago Sister Cities International Program and the U.S. commercial attaché in Morocco.

The 1993 trade mission resulted in 47 sales leads, 24 representation leads and eight possible joint ventures. Total estimated revenues were $6.7 million over 24 months. American National Bank signed four "corresponding bank agreements" with Casablanca banks during the mission. All parties involved agreed they had a highly successful mission. In addition, the Committee presented the Mayor of Casablanca with a photo exhibit on Chicago architecture, which toured local schools and then went on permanent display at the City Hall. The Committee also had productive meetings with the Mayor, the Wali (Governor), the U.S. Consul General, and the American and Casablanca Chambers of Commerce.

Dr. Henry Betts, chairman of the Chicago Rehabilitation Institute, spoke with the director of Ibn Rochd about setting up a rehabilitation program at the hospital.

Focus: Medical and Social Service

Dr. Golden, a Chicago doctor specializing in rheumatology, lectured in Casablanca at the Ibn Rochd Hospital.

Focus: Medical and Social Service

Stemming from a second trip to Casablanca made by several Committee members, the Lalla Hassna's Orphanage and "Gout de Lait", a hospital for premature babies, were adopted as organizations the Committee would assist.

Focus: Medical and Social Service

The Casablanca Committee continued its very active support of Ibn Rochd Children's Hospital via donations of medical supplies, books, professional trainings and site visits.

2000Focus: Culture

The Casablanca Committee held an opening night celebration of DePaul University's "Exploring Muslim Cultures Series". The evening included a private viewing of the exhibit "Weaving Culture: Textiles and Jewelry in Morocco", and proceeds benefited the Ibn Rochd Children's Hospital in Casablanca.

Focus: Architecture

The Casablanca Committee hosted a group of architects from Morocco, including two from the city government of Casablanca. The group was in town to meet with Chicago architects and landmark preservation specialists. Although Casablanca has one of the finest collections of Art Deco architecture in the world, little has been done to preserve it until lately. Chicago architect and Casablanca Committee member Paul Shaver attended an architectural forum in Casablanca, where he gave a lecture on Chicago architecture to the Casablanca Architecture Association. Since, he has worked with the Moroccan Architecture Association and the American Counsel General to help them create a landmark ordinance in Casablanca. In 2000, the city passed a landmark bill, based on the Chicago ordinance. Casablanca's first landmark building has been designated.

Focus: Culture

The Casablanca Committee held a fundraiser for Pegasus Players to support their production of "Side by Side by Sondheim" in Casablanca.

Focus: Education

As a part of the Chicago Sister Cities Sister Schools Abroad Program, 30 students from Le Cedre School in Casablanca, ages 12-18, visited their sister schools in Chicago. They were hosted by Chicago students and their families, and were given a taste of both Chicago's sites and American schools. These students practiced their English and helped students of French in their sister schools exercise their linguistic skills. Various activities were planned for these students, including trips to museums, trolley tours, a day at Navy Pier, and a presentation by Dr. Paul Sereno, who discovered a 90-million-year-old dinosaur on an expedition to Morocco. The public highlight of their visit was a performance at the Chicago Cultural Center, where each group of students gave musical performances for their counterparts from their sister schools.

Focus: Culture

Focus: Culture

Chicago Week in Casablanca: Eighty-Two participants from Chicago carried out a multi-sectored mission to Casablanca including a medical component, city planning, business, volunteerism strengthening, and education component. The counterpart Chicago Committee in Casablanca made logistical arrangements for a genuine collaborative exchange. Thirty-Five Optometrists and technicians conducted a vision clinic with Moroccan counterparts, examining over 3200 underserved children and adults in five days. Six urologists and two surgical nurses performed microsurgeries and held a technical seminar with counterparts from Ibn Rochd Hospital. City planning experts presented the Chicago model and plan for future collaborations in infrastructure development and architectural preservation. MBA students from Kellogg School of Management (Northwestern University) toured Moroccan business schools and explored potential internship placements with business enterprises and FTA opportunities. Committee members participated in a volunteerism seminar to promote networking, sharing of resources and ideas and other ways to build capacity. NGO literacy programs were the area of intense collaboration. Education experts introduced Moroccan educational reforms and committee members so to initiate a new sister school agreement. A bluegrass group performed Chicago-style music and collaborated with Moroccan musicians.

Focus: Business

The Casablanca Committee participated in a World Bank Institute study on the feasibility of international municipal cooperation in achievement of Millennium Development Goals (MDGs). Casablanca and Chicago focused on the area of literacy in two neighborhoods (poor working class) of Casablanca. Researchers gathered data on literacy rates among 15-24 year olds and communicated findings of the survey to make practical suggestions for future development projects. Videoconferences were held to join WB, Sister Cities International, Chicago, Casablanca and Tamale, Ghana and Louisville, Kentucky to discuss process and collaboration status. Chicago gathered an expert committee to give advice on this topic and frequent written and telephonic exchanges track progress and share planning tasks.

DecemberFocus: Sports

Casablanca – Chicago Youth Development Initiative: This special initiative between the Casablanca and Chicago Committees of Sister Cities International Program and the Moroccan Basketball Federation is part of a larger attempt to create positive options for young people in Morocco and develop life skills through sports. This ongoing project demonstrates existing Chicago models of sports, youth and education programs for replication in Morocco in the hopes of countering the influence of extremist groups recruiting young Moroccan men and women for negative purposes. The basketball camps educate the participants in basketball techniques and drills while encouraging literacy, academic excellence, life skills and character development.

2006December 4-6*Focus: Culture

The Casablanca Committee of CSCI and the Chicago Department of Cultural Affairs brought the exotic sights of a Moroccan Souk (Moroccan Marketplace) to the Chicago Cultural Center for an international experience including goods for sale from every corner of Morocco, including jewelry, pottery and home furnishings at every price point. The Marketplace was free and open to the public and attracted hundreds of shoppers each day.

April 5

Focus: General

In conjunction with Global Voices, the Casablanca Committee planned a multi-faceted trip to Casablanca. Eric Weinheimer, President and CEO of the Cara Program (a program that assists the homeless and at-risk populations in their efforts to achieve real and lasting success by providing comprehensive training, permanent job placement and critical support services) met with Casablanca officials to provide best-practice information about poverty eradication and job training programs. Lisa Roberts, former Chicago Park District's Director of Conservatories, worked with city planners to discuss the best use of the large piece of land given to the City Casablanca by the King of Morocco. Dan Frank, Principal of Francis Parker High School joined the committee to make a Sister School and Global Voices relationship with a Jewish-Muslim school. The comprehensive basketball exchange will also continue as four coaches from One on One Basketball traveled to Casablanca to impart basketball coaching and life skills to underserved youth.

Focus: Education

Through the Global Voices Program, Schurz High School French language students exchanged play-reading with their counterparts at Ben M'Sick and Mohamed VI schools in Casablanca through a video conference.

July 22-31

Focus: Education

Thirteen students from Casablanca visited Chicago. They were part of a group called IDMAJ, a volunteer organization that serves and teaches children from slum neighborhoods. They met with the Director of Education at the Chicago Children's Museum, the CEO of CARA program, took a tour of Gallery 37 and met with Mayor Daley.

2008

April

Focus: Multiple

The Casablanca committee took a multi-faceted trip to Morocco in April. They donated $15,000 to the Chicago Cultural Center in Sidi Moumen, a low-income neighborhood in Casablanca. This center was created by Boubker Mazoz, President of the Casablanca Chicago Sister Cities committee, and serves the youth in the community with a computer center, tutoring, and a theater. The center is also in the process of building a radio station to be used for and by the Sidi Moumen neighborhood. During the trip, the Sister School Abroad Program educators met with their counterparts in Casablanca to further improve their relationship, discuss exciting opportunities and create a network of school exchanges.

They plan to expand their programming with green technology and the Growing Connection project. The Growing Connection maximizes the use of plants to grow food and combat hunger, and is wonderful for dry or urban areas. It provides an opportunity for education to teach growing food, plant science, and microeconomics. Twenty-one Earth Boxes will be delivered to Casablanca for use at several sites. Global Voices brought two teachers from Chicago to Casablanca and will continue their programming.

The committee is also in the preliminary stages of planning a food documentary, and has scouted locations in Casablanca.

April 11

Focus: Government and Humanitarian

Mayor Richard M. Daley and Todd Murray, President of Beltone Electronics Corporation, welcomed His Excellency Aziz Mekouar, Ambassador of Morocco to the U.S. and Mr. Ahmed Reda, Moroccan Minister of Industry, Trade and New Technologies to Chicago. Beltone partnered with the Casablanca and Humanitarian Committees of Chicago Sister Cities International to donate 100 Beltone hearing instruments, worth more than $200,000, to Casablanca. The hearing aids will be distributed through the Moroccan Association of Sister Cities International.

The donation was made possible through the strong bonds between the Sister Cities of Casablanca and Chicago and through the public and private partnership between the City of Chicago and Beltone Electronics. This donation marks the third time that Beltone has partnered with Chicago Sister Cities International. The two previous donations were made in collaboration with the Amman Committee of CSCI. Last year, $200,000 worth of hearing aids was donated to the Holy Land Institute for the Deaf. In 2007, Beltone donated $400,000 worth of hearing aids to the King Hussein Cancer Center.

While in Chicago, H.E. Ambassador Mekouar also acknowledged the appointment of Marilyn Diamond as Honorary Consul General of Morocco in Chicago, and Lady Janet Murphy as Honorary Vice Consul General of Morocco in Chicago. They were appointed to these positions because of the work they have done to strengthen the ties between the Sister Cities of Chicago and Casablanca in their roles as Co-Chairs of the Casablanca Committee of Chicago Sister Cities International. Lady Janet Murphy received the decoration of the Order of Wissam Al Alaoui from His Majesty King Mohamed VI in recognition of a lifetime of service to Morocco, beginning with her service there in the Peace Corps in 1964.

May

Focus: African Urban Poverty Alleviation Program

The African Urban Poverty Alleviation Program proposal, submitted by the Casablanca committee, was approved by Sister Cities International. Work will begin on supporting a clinic in the Sidi Moumen neighborhood. Support will include securing equipment and medical materials, the renovation of toilets and the construction and renovation of additional rooms. Our project will provide a more sanitary environment inside and outside the clinic, needed computers and equipment to better organize patients and their files. Ultimately we want to increase the amount of patients seen, treated or counseled by a doctor and renovate the space within and outside the clinic.
